

You are cordially invited to a Community Forum I am hosting to review the challenges facing higher education in Colorado on Saturday, February 13th, from 9:00 – 10:30 a.m., in Columbine B at the University Center on the UNC campus, 20th Street and 10th Avenue, Greeley.

Guest presenters will include: Kay Norton, President, UNC; Dr. Marsi Liddell, President, Aims Community College; Mike Price, a student at Aims; and Matt VanDriel, a student at UNC. A representative from the Colorado Commission on Higher Education has been invited.

The focus for the presentations will be funding and enrollment issues, the current demand for continued education, and how the institutions can best serve the students and the community. The public is invited and encouraged to attend. There will be time for open discussion and sharing.

It is important that people have an opportunity to share their concerns, but it is just as important that they understand the forces that are driving the debate, and the challenge to generate the needed capital.

For additional information, or to offer suggestions for future forums, please contact me at 970-351-6619.